1926 School Taxes Must be Settled by June 18, Board Rules

Ogden Asked To Complete Collections Or Else Borrow Amount Due.

Because William Ogden, borough tax collector, has not made settlement in full for his 1926 and 1927 school tax duplicates, the Gettysburg school board at its June meeting, Friday evening, decided to withhold the 1928 duplicate from the collector until later in the month.

The board, which elects its own tax collector, decided to postpone election of a collector until June 18, when Mr. Ogden was instructed to appear and to settle, if possible, the 1926 tax duplicate, at least, in full.

Refuses To Borrow Cash
Mr. Ogden, it was pointed out, is elected collector of county and borough taxes by the voters of the community, and the school board has always chosen the borough collector to perform the same duties for it.

The tax collector told the board he would do everything in his power in order to clean up the back duplicates, but flatly refused to adopt a solution, suggested by the directors, that he borrow money to settle the duplicates and then retain the taxes as they are collected.

Mr. Ogden pointed out that it would cost him 6 per cent interest to borrow money, while his commission would amount to only 5 per cent. He said he would probably appoint a deputy collector to try to get in the back levies in time for a report to the school board on June 18.

$8,300 Is Outstanding
The board indicated that if the 1926 duplicate were cleaned up, Mr. Ogden would be given the 1928 duplicate although part of the 1927 taxes was still outstanding. The board exonerated Mr. Ogden from the collection of approximately $650 in 1926 taxes at the meeting. The remainder of the 1926 duplicate approximates $2,300, the board was informed, while taxes outstanding in the 1927 duplicate total about $6,000.

The state school code provides that duplicates of each year shall be settled for in full by June 1 of the following year, otherwise the members of the school board are individually liable for the outstanding taxes.

The board fixed $30,000 as the amount of the bond it will require the collector to post for 1928. The bond was increased from $24,000 to $30,000 at the instance of Mr. Ogden, and it is assumed that the board will re-elect him as its collector at the June 18 meeting.

Elect 2 Teachers
The board elected two new teachers at the session, Miss Mary Louise Scott, Freedom township, and Miss Florence McClellan, Gettysburg. Both have had two years' teaching experience. Miss Scott taught in Liberty township during the last year, and Miss McClellan was attending Shippensburg State Normal school. One additional teacher, and probably two, will be elected in July to take care of the increasing enrollment in the lower grades.

Miss Louise Ramer, Baltimore street, was named census taker, at a salary of $50 for the work.

A proposition to combine the sixth grades at the High street and Meade buildings in the latter building was discussed and left to the discretion of L. C. Keefe, supervising principal of the school.

Set Size Limit On Firecrackers For Celebrators

A modification of the "wide open" celebration of the Fourth of July in Gettysburg in the last two years is in prospect for celebrators this year.

Burgess C. A. Heiges today announced that the sale and use of explosive devices will be limited to "small fire crackers and such fire works as are comparatively harmless," and warned merchants to govern themselves accordingly in laying in their supplies.

In a display advertisement, appearing in today's issue of The Gettysburg Times and directed to "Gettysburg Merchants," Burgess Heiges says:

"Due to the numerous complaints of the kind of fire works used in Gettysburg the past two years, I have decided to limit the sale and use of fire works this year to the small fire crackers and such fire works as are comparatively harmless."

"No fire crackers larger than the 10 cent packs will be allowed and the small 'dynamite crackers' with fuse in the middle as used last year will not be tolerated."

RUBBER PLANT ADDS NEW LINE

Sure Foot Company Begins Manufacture of Stair Treads.

The Sure Foot Heel and Rubber Company of Gettysburg has begun the manufacture of stair treads, in addition to its various lines of rubber heels, it is announced by Roy P. Funkhouser, general manager.

Within the next month, the company will be manufacturing an average of 5,000 rubber stair mats a day, Mr. Funkhouser said. Already, the company has orders from large retailers which will consume the entire stair tread product of the plant for some time, he added.

At the same time, Mr. Funkhouser announced that the company is completing arrangements for the manufacture of a new and higher grade rubber heel. Practically all that remains to be done before the new heel can be turned out is to get confirmation from the United States patent office at Washington of the name selected for the new heel.

Of more than 300 names suggested by Gettysburg Times readers for the new heel, the Sure Foot officials selected first, second, third and fourth choices of names and sent them to the patent office. When word is received granting permission for the use of the names the company has preempted, announcement will be made of the winner of the contest recently conducted through the advertising columns of this newspaper and the Gettysburg Compiler for a name. The name which is finally used on the new heel will win for the person who suggested it a twenty-dollar gold piece.

Women Taking Lead in Art of Killing Snakes

St. Patrick may be given credit for driving snakes out of Ireland, but when it comes to disposing of the reptiles in Adams county, women are winning the laurels.

Last week, Mrs. George Ditchburn, East Middle street, killed a large rattle snake near Caledonia, with one well-directed stone, and on Friday, Mrs. Clair Foulk, of Table Rock, killed two large copperheads.

Mrs. Foulk was on her way to the chicken house when she saw the smaller of two copperhead snakes. Using a stone, she disposed of it, and looking around she saw a much larger reptile of the same species about to attack her. Seizing a hoe, she quickly killed the second snake which measured 36 inches. The smaller copperhead was 28 inches long.

"LAST SURVIVOR" HERE FOR MEMORIAL DAY IS AUTHOR OF G. A. R. POEM

Chief of Philadelphia Bank Detectives Who Served As Drummer Boy at Gettysburg Dedicates Stanzas to Memory of Survivors of the Civil War.

The last survivor of the "Old Guard of Philadelphia Police," the position of chief of bank detectives of Philadelphia, is a familiar figure in the City of Brotherly Love, wearing as his official "detective uniform" a high top hat, green tie, black top coat, pearl gray trousers and gray spats. He carries with him a heavy black-thorn cane which he procured from Ireland during one of his many visits. He resides at Fifth street and city line, Philadelphia, with his wife, who is one year his junior.

DEAN JACKSON'S BOOK ACCEPTED NAME HOSPITAL COMMITTEES

To Be Published By One Of Leading Concerns Of The Country. Routine Business Transacted at Meeting of Board; 57 Patients Admitted.

Changes taking place in educational relations between the church and the state—between civil and ecclesiastical power, and a discussion of "what seems to be the wisest policies on the parts of the church" feature a book, "Religious Education and the Church," begun and largely completed by the late Jerome K. Jackson, dean of men at Gettysburg college, which has just been accepted for publication by Doubleday, Doran and company, New York city publishers, and will soon be presented to the public.

Announcement of acceptance for publication of the book by one of the largest publishing concerns in the country is made by Dr. Constantine F. Malmberg, 253 Baltimore street, professor of philosophy at Gettysburg college.

The sudden death of Dean Jackson in March of 1927 left his manuscript, on which he had spent years in research and writing, unfinished. The work was being prepared as a dissertation for a degree for teachers' college of Columbia university and was being developed under the supervision of the department of religious education at that institution.

The introduction to the book points out that "Mrs. Jackson, who had followed her husband's work with a loyal and tender interest, and his many friends, who were cognizant of the time and energy spent upon the task and who realized its value, naturally desired to see it completed as a tribute to Dean Jackson's labors and as an evidence of his high character and ideals." Upon the request of Mrs. Jackson, Professor Malmberg assumed the responsibility of completing the unfinished manuscript.

The preface is written by Dr. George A. Goe, a leader and authority in the field of religious education, from whom "this work received its original impetus, its sustained inspiration and constant guidance" according to the introduction, which was also written by Doctor Malmberg.

ITALIA CREW IS ALIVE ON BLEAK COAST

Rescue Parties Hastening Toward Place Where Dirigible Has Landed.

King's Bay, June 9.—(AP)—It is reported at King's Bay that it has been established that all 18 men aboard the dirigible Italia are alive.

The messages which the Citta di Milano has picked up would indicate that the Italia's position is just off Cape Lee Leigh Smith, about 20 miles from the coast of Northeast Land.

Every resource of King's Bay today was being strained to the utmost to send help to the Italia while the base crew was rushing preparations to send out the Citta di Milano in case it should be necessary to help the sealer Hobby and the ice cutter Braganza.

The two ships are now approaching the scene of the Italia's supposed descent. Every effort was continued to catch some signal however faint from the dirigible.

Although the utmost hope prevailed here there was some fear that it would be difficult for the Hobby and the Braganza to find the Italia since the ice is subject to frequent movements.

There was doubt at King's Bay as to the condition of the ice north of Northeast Land at the present time. This region is just along the border of the approximate limit of open water and ice conditions consequently are not stable. The Braganza was at North Cape north of Northeast Land but was stopped by the packed ice.

There was great excitement aboard the Citta di Milano today, groups of the base crew discussing chances of rescuing their comrades.

PACIFIC FLIERS AT BRISBANE

Complete Hop From Oakland to Australia; To Continue On To Sydney.

Brisbane, June 9.—(AP)—The wildest enthusiasm marked a civil reception this afternoon to the four members of the Southern Cross which flew from Oakland, California, to this city over the Pacific ocean.

Capt. Charles Kingsford-Smith, flight commander of the airplane, wore as a mascot a scarlet monkey fashioned of silk. Capt. Charles Ulm, co-pilot, still carried his goggles and helmet. The two Americans, Harry Lyon, navigator, and James Warner, radio man, were dressed in ordinary street attire.

When a telegram from Prime Minister Bruce was read announcing the commonwealth's intention of granting $25,000 to Kingsford-Smith the enthusiasm ran riot. The aviators were congratulated as four brave men who had concluded one of the most amazing feats in history.

Brisbane, Australia, June 9.—(AP)—The monoplane Southern Cross arrived here from the Fiji Islands at 10:10 a. m. today (7:10 p. m. Friday, Eastern Standard time).

The Southern Cross had bridged the Pacific by air, and Australia and America clasped hands across the water.

In the pilots' positions were Captain Charles Kingsford-Smith and Charles Ulm, Australians. The navigator was Harry W. Lyon and the radio operator, James Warner, Americans.

News and Comment by THE EDITOR

Waynesboro high school graduated a class of 91, exactly the same number as were graduated from the Gettysburg high school. Waynesboro boasts of a population of upward of 10,000, more than twice as many as Gettysburg. It would seem, therefore, that the number of children who finish high school in Gettysburg is twice as many as in the average community.

Few persons acquired a wider circle of friends and acquaintances during the same period he lived in a community than the late Jerome K. Jackson drew about him during the comparatively short time he was a resident of Gettysburg and dean of men at Gettysburg college. It will be learned with deep gratitude by all his friends that a work begun by him and upon which he spent many hours of labor will soon be published by one of the leading book publishers of the country.

Concerning this work, the details of which are given in another column of today's Times, Dr. George A. Goe, of Glendora, California, nationally known leader and authority in the field of religious education, who knew Dean Jackson intimately, in a preface to the book, carried to a successful conclusion by Dr. C. F. Malmberg, of the college faculty, writes as follows:

"What is the actual or the proper relation of 'the church' to 'the state' in matters educational? This is the form that most inquiries within the field of this book have taken. But what if the factors in question are changing? What if we have a changing state, a changing church, and a changing theory and practice of education? In this case we have something far more difficult to do than merely applying what we conceive to be proper principles. It is conceivable that in the present movement for week-day religious education, for example, the attainment of a satisfactory equilibrium will require the working out of principles largely new.

"Even a cursory glance at current events made it plain to Dean (then Professor) Jackson that the total situation is a moving one. The resulting problem then took the form of questions like these: Precisely what, in detail, are the changes that are taking place in the educational relations between the civil and the ecclesiastical power? When these details are compared, do they indicate a drift or general direction of movement? And, in view of the answers to these questions, what policies on the part of the churches seem to be wise?

"Enormous labor was necessary if these inquiries, or even if the first of them, were to be answered. For example, in order to make the data comprehensive, and to bring them down to date, it was necessary not only to assemble recent judicial decisions, together with the laws and constitutions back of them, but also significant administrative decisions by boards of education and by superintendents of school systems. Moreover, legislative contests and even defeated bills, though they left no mark upon statute books, were deemed to be significant of the moving consciousness of our time.

"The zeal, the industry, and the discrimination with which Professor Jackson attacked this problem are evident in the pages that follow. (Continued on Second Page.)

BOY INJURED IN EXPLOSION OF GUNPOWDER

Mother Tears Clothing From Injured Boy; Eye Sight Is Threatened.

John Wilbur McClellan, 13, suffered burns about the face, threatening the sight of his right eye, when gunpowder which he had transferred from a powder flask to an old shoe which he placed in a bonfire at his home on West Middle street exploded, Thursday afternoon.

Although he still wore a bandage over the injured eye today, the boy's mother, Mrs. George F. McClellan, said he was able to see. The lad's face still showed signs of the powder burns.

The powder had been in the flask more than 20 years, Mrs. McClellan said, having been put there by her husband. John took the powder and placed it in an old shoe which he threw into the fire. He then sat down nearby to wait developments.

In a few moments, the powder was ignited, and the injured boy, his face blackened by the explosive and his shirt afire, ran crying to his mother, who was in the kitchen of their home.

Taking in the situation at a glance, Mrs. McClellan tore the flaming shirt from her son, which probably saved the boy from more serious injury. Mrs. McClellan was not burned by her heroic action.

RESCUES CHILD FROM RIVER

State Capitol Employee Pulls 4 Year Old Babe From Susquehanna.

Harrisburg, June 9.—A 4-year-old child was rescued from the high waters of the Susquehanna river by Harold Becker, 22, an employee in the state police offices at the capitol, late yesterday.

Becker heard the screams of a woman as he was walking south in River park at North street. Looking down the river bank into the swirling waters of the stream he saw the small head of a child bobbing up and down.

A frantic nurse-maid held two other small children at her side at the foot of the bank.

Throwing off his hat and coat Becker leaped down the bank and plunged into the stream. The little tot was several feet out from shore and Becker struck out to catch him as he was carried down stream.

He managed to arrive opposite the child after a few strokes in the swift current. The swimmer grabbed the child by his shirt at the back and holding him above the water swam for shore.

The exhausted child, a boy of about 4 years of age, was carried to a grass patch at the top of the bank. Becker and the nurse-maid gave first aid treatment and the child was quickly revived.

Becker said that the nurse was too frightened to talk and went away without telling him who the parents of the child were. It is believed that the parents lived in Front street.

WANT MAN FOR STEALING PLANE

Extradition Asked By New York Authorities For Man Who Took Machine.

Harrisburg, June 9.—A new charge in the annals of criminal procedure, the theft of an airplane, is being brought to the attention of state authorities here.

The requisition of Charles Banks, of Wilkes-Barre, is being asked by the state of New York. Request for requisition has been signed by Governor Alfred E. Smith and now awaits a hearing before Governor Fisher at the capitol here. The hearing has been set for next Tuesday at 2 o'clock in the afternoon. As Governor Fisher will be in Kansas City for the Republican convention, a deputy attorney general will probably hear the petition.

Banks is charged with stealing an airplane belonging to Harry Boehm, of Schenectady, New York, in 1925. The Pennsylvania resident was indicted on a charge of larceny.

Arthur Magee, detective sergeant at Schenectady, arrived in Harrisburg yesterday to return Banks to New York if the papers are granted.

PHILA. RECORD SOLD TO STERN

Camden, New Jersey, Newspaper Publisher Purchases Democratic Organ.

Philadelphia, June 9.—(AP)—Announcement was made last night that the Philadelphia Record has been sold by the Rodman Wanamaker estate to David Stern, well known newspaper publisher.

The following editorial announcement appeared in the Record today:

"A contract was signed yesterday by David Stern for purchase of the Philadelphia Record from the estate of Rodman Wanamaker. 'New ownership of the Record implies no change in editorial policy.'"

Rodman Wanamaker, head of the Wanamaker stores in Philadelphia and New York, died last March. He had acquired the Record from the estate of his brother, Thomas B. Wanamaker, a year and a half ago.

The Record was established by William M. Singler in 1870, and has always been conducted as a Democratic newspaper.

HERE AND THERE

low. Of his untimely death just as his feet were approaching the summit of his toilsome way, and of the manner in which his load has been assumed by another and carried to its destination, Professor Malmberg will tell. I crave the privilege, however, of commenting upon the joint authors of this work.

"To Dean Jackson the book is a fitting monument—more fitting than bronze or marble, more fitting than any structure that others could rear in memory of him. I knew him as a graduate student, and I watched both the growth of his mind and the progress of his research. Though he had had some years of experience as a college teacher, and was soon to be drafted into a deanship, yet his whole aspect was that of youth just starting upon a high adventure. It was refreshing to me, his old teacher, to witness the candor with which he faced issues that were difficult as well as new in his experience. His devotion to truth knew no bounds. He was modest as to his capacities, yet he recoiled from nothing that needed to be done, and he did not faint when he discovered how long was his journey. With his mind it was always morning. I do not wonder that he was wanted as dean of men, though I had the hope that he would have a long career devoted entirely to teaching the principles and the practice of religious education.

"It was both the value of Jackson's uncompleted research and the quality of his personality that inspired his colleague, Professor Malmberg, to undertake the extremely difficult task that is now finished. I say 'inspired' advisedly. For the undertaking was at once greatly worth while and yet extremely difficult and laborious. The way in which he has entered into Jackson's problems, mastered his data, and skillfully rounded out the research is so striking—is so shipping an example of both scholarship and friendship—that, if I could, I would run to tell Jackson about it. I cannot tell him or congratulate him, but I am glad of an opportunity to say that in my judgment this joint work of Jackson and Malmberg will fill an important vacancy in our knowledge, and will assist the present generation in making some of its most difficult decisions."

It would appear that Burgess Heiges was a victim of his own good nature concerning the incident out of which grew heated words and controversy between representatives of a local protestant church and the borough's chief executive before borough council. Happily, the controversy was satisfactorily adjusted.

The Burgess is to be commended for his action in extending what he had reason to believe was a favor to two ex-service men who asked him for the privilege of earning some money in Gettysburg Memorial Day, in a legitimate manner, and waiting payment of the customary vendors' license fee. The human action of the Burgess was in striking contrast to rebuffs usually encountered by ex-service men in getting the even privileges to which they are entitled from most "hard-boiled" governmental agencies.

The Burgess seems to have been duped, that's all. Had the aggrieved churchmen gone to the Burgess to obtain the address to which they justly felt they were entitled, as a result of the damage to their lawn suffered through the erection of a soft-drink stand thereon by the phoney "Ex-Service" men, there is no doubt the matter could have been straightened out without the public argument and publicity in general.

Churchmen ought to be the first to discourage, rather than encourage, that growing form of intolerance which seeks public airing of alleged grievances when said grievances might readily and quietly be adjusted by going direct to the one who presumably has done the wrong.

GLORIOUS BETSY

NOVELIZED BY
ARLINE DE HAAS

Copyright 1928, Warner Bros. Pictures, Inc.
"GLORIOUS BETSY," starring Dolores Costello, is a Warner Bros. picture of this novel. Based on the play by Rida Johnson Young.

SYNOPSIS
The bewitching Betsy Patterson is staying with her father and aunt at Sweet Springs Inn. Surrounded by eager admirers she is secretly attracted to her French tutor, the handsome La Vert. While she is preparing for a lesson, two French officers arrive at the inn. She is angry when La Vert leaves her abruptly and does not see the officers salute. They greet him as the runaway Captain Jerome Bonaparte, brother and ambassador of Napoleon. They agree to give him another hour incognito before returning with them. Seeking out Betsy, he finds her thrilling at the prospect of entertaining Jerome Bonaparte in Baltimore.

"Yes, Monroe has settled it all with M. De Langiac," Major Patterson surveyed his daughter's guests, pride exuding at every pore. "His last visit is to be paid to us before he sails for France. Now what do you say to your old vacillating father, eh?" He pinched his daughter's cheek.
"Oh, you dear old thoughtful darling," Betsy threw her arms about her father's neck and kissed him soundly. "Then we are really to receive the brother of Napoleon!"
Murmurs of congratulatory approval swept through the group of men who now stood about, commenting on the news brought by the Major.
"Oh, I'll be the envy of Baltimore!" Betsy cried joyously. "Is he handsome? Is he engaged? Is he impressionable?" Betsy was pacing around her father, asking one question after another and not waiting for an answer. "Oh, if I only could capture him," she sighed.

"But, papa—" Betsy began again, "M. La Vert is quite right. He has already told you about this Jerome Bonaparte, and still you want to entertain him. And I think—" Patterson began to bluster again. "You don't need to think, miss. I'll do all the thinking. 'Gad, my own daughter stands up against her father. I'll—I'll—I'll—he started for his bedroom, but, on second thought, turned.
"What's your hurry to get rid of me," he demanded suspiciously of his daughter and her "tutor." Betsy looked perfectly nonplussed, and as hopelessly innocent as a toddling child. "Listen, young man," he took a step towards Jerome, his face once more becoming the hue of a ripe tomato. "I stand a good deal from you because my daughter says you speak fine French."
"Splendid, Papa!" Betsy clapped her hands gleefully and watched the effects of her father's words on her tutor.
"But fine as your French may be," Major Patterson thundered, "she doesn't understand a word of it, I dare say." The Major smiled on his lovely daughter.
"Sacre!" Betty murmured loud enough for Jerome to hear, and lowered her head, looking at her tutor demurely from half closed eyes.
Patterson paid no heed to his daughter, but rumbled on like a volley of machine gun fire.
"But let me tell you, sir," he shook his fist. "I've had three previous tutors, and every one of them made love to my daughter, and—"
"Papa! Please!" Betsy tried to quell this outburst of confidence that so ill suited her plans. For the fact that all her teachers had made it a habit to fall in love with her might make it appear to La Vert that she was accustomed to encouraging these affairs. Where, as previously, Betsy assured herself, it had not been her fault in the least. She couldn't help it when these instructors began to look dreamily off into space in the middle of a lesson, and to talk nonsense about her and to her. But her father was not to be put off.
"Hold your tongue, Betsy!" Patterson demanded. "Now, if your anxiety," he turned to the tutor sharply, "to be relieved of my presence has anything to do with such stuff and nonsense—"

CHRYSLER IS DURABLE CAR

Is Given As Proof Of Its Durability.

Voluntary expression from Chrysler owners everywhere, born of their enthusiasm for the results secured from their cars, reveal that this newest great motor car organization has consistently engineered, designed and produced cars combining durability and long life with exceptionally low maintenance and operating costs.

Though the original Chrysler cars are today only four years old, company records show that many of them have already exceeded 100,000 miles. J. W. Frazer, Chrysler sales manager, points out that a consistent 25,000 miles or more annually has been necessary to turn up this mileage.

Ernest C. McCollon, of Portland, Oregon, is believed to have driven a Chrysler further than any other person, even including factory test pilots. Several months ago his "70" sedan had already covered 157,000 miles. His total repair bill for that distance, including four valve grindings, was less than $30 for each 10,000 miles.

Jack C. Wheeler, of Oklahoma City, is running Mr. McCollon a good second. His "70" sport roadster at 133,000 miles was delivering "from 17 to 23 miles per gallon of gasoline," he writes. "I can still operate it with the same results as the first year I ran it. I figure that the car, allowing for everything, has not cost more than 3 cents a mile to operate."

"In my estimation there is no car that will surpass the Chrysler," says L. P. Mickelboro, of Richmond, Va. "I own a '70' phaeton and have received better service from it than from any other car I have owned. It has been driven 119,533 miles up to now and has cost me in repairs only $90—very little in return for the service received from it."

From Terre Haute, Ind., E. A. Bolin reports that his "70" roadster, "purchased four years ago, has 90,300 miles on it. The motor has never been down. I have had four other makes of cars and consider the Chrysler by far the best automobile I have ever owned."

To which C. O. Self, of Dubuque, Iowa, contributes that "on December 5, 1924, I purchased a '70' royal coupe. On December 5, 1925, at which time I had driven the car 31,024 miles, I had new piston rings installed. What little carbon had accumulated was removed and the valves ground slightly. Then I continued to drive this car up to 91,900 miles, reaching this December 13, 1927. At that distance I had no parts replaced with the exception of the rings already mentioned. I was so well pleased with its easy operation that when I traded for a '72' four passenger coupe I did so without even starting the engine or seeing it started, which shows the confidence I have in Chrysler automobiles."

Lester R. Wilson, of Chicago, tells a little different story. "I have owned 10 automobiles, all selling for more than $3500, and six Chrysler '70' and '80' models," he wrote recently. "Not only has my expense with the Chryslers been so economical as to be almost beyond comparison with other makes of cars, but their remarkable performance also has made me a most sincere enthusiast."

"My home is in Lake Geneva, Wisconsin, approximately 76 miles from Chicago. I make the trip here practically every day. My average running time is 100 minutes. I love fast driving and know of no other car that would stand the punishment I give the Chrysler. I have often experienced watching the speedometer roll around to 83, and you can believe me that it is a thrill I love. It is interesting, also, to know that the car handles with the same comfort and ease at high speed as it does at 30 miles per hour."

TYPES OF TIRES ARE EXPLAINED
Arthur Phiel, Goodyear Tire Dealer, Tells of Various Kinds.
With interest in aeronautics growing throughout the country, many questions bearing on airplane tire equipment are being asked, according to Arthur Phiel, Goodyear tire dealer at 438 York street.

"One of these questions, which we are asked frequently, is if there is any difference between airplane and automobile tires.
"There is an interesting difference in these two types of tires. In the automobile tire, Goodyear interprets the demand of motorists for long mileage and slow wear, combined with riding comfort.
"The passenger car balloon tire equipment of today is without a doubt the best ever produced—combining all these qualities with the lowest cost in history.
"Airplane tires are built with the primary purpose of providing great resistance to heavy shocks. Although they are just as sturdy as the automobile tire, they give comparatively shorter mileage.

"Goodyear was the first company to introduce the non-skid tread on airplane tires. The smooth-surface tire is now becoming obsolete.
"This tread feature was first added to provide added safety to planes using brakes on the landing chassis. This is a growing tendency in airplane manufacture. However, the non-skid tire has come into general use on all types of planes.

"There is quite a difference in tire sizes, too. The smallest airplane tire is 20x4, while the smallest automobile tire is 27x4.0. Pneumatic truck tires range in size up to 44x10, while tires on the larger planes, such as the big bombers, take tire equipment 54x12, the largest size made."

"72" the greatest fact in motor cars today

From low price to high, all engineering today takes its cue from Chrysler—yet what are the facts?

Run the gamut of cars, from low to high, which seek to emulate Chrysler—and still the illustrious Chrysler "72" runs easily away from them all with all the honors of flashing, efficient performance!

However much they seek to act like Chrysler "72"—to ride and drive and accelerate and glide like Chrysler "72"—the illustrious "72" continues to leave them all in the rear in brilliant behavior.

There is no escaping this plain fact—that as motor car manufacturing exists today, anyone who pays as much as, or up to a thousand dollars more than the price of Chrysler "72," for another car unmistakably gets less. This is the one great important fact in motor car buying today.

been here for the past year. His home is in Philadelphia.

Miss Ethel Smith, a sister of the bride, and Lieut. Edward Hendricks were the attendants.

Titus—Sheely.—Miss Sarah M.

Sheely, of Gettysburg, a daughter of the late Prof. and Mrs. Aaron Sheely, was married on Tuesday at Harrisburg to Harry T. Titus, of

Rochester, New York. The ceremony was performed at the home of the bride's sister, Mrs. Buttorff, by Rev. Mr. Markward. They will reside in Rochester where Mr.

Titus is engaged as an electrician.

Nurse Safe Across.—Mr. and Mrs. W. H. Tipton, Chambersburg street, have received word that their daughter, Miss Esther Tipton, has arrived safe overseas. Miss

Tipton is with the Jefferson hospital unit.

Publisher Here.—Cyrus H. K.

Curtis, the Philadelphia publisher;

Mrs. Curtis, Mrs. Edward Bok and

Master Cary Bok motored to Gettysburg on Friday from Philadel-phila which has furnished many chemists for the big powder concern.

To Leave Gettysburg.—Frank B.

Sutton, who for the past six years has had charge of the carpet, rug and drapery department at the G.

W. Weaver and Son store and who made many friends while serving in that capacity, has resigned to accept a position with the Pennsylvania Dye and Bleach Works, which has factories at New Cumberland and Pottstown. Mr. Sutton will have his headquarters at

New Cumberland and will take up his new position June 17th.

He has been succeeded in the carpet department of the Weaver

Store by Ralph D. Streig, who has been in the employ of that concern for some years.

Took New Car from Garage.—

The new Buick touring car of John

M. Blocher, Carlisle street, was stolen from his garage some time during the night. As yet there is no clue whatever to the thief.

On Thursday evening the doors had been securely fastened. The large door leading into the alley was locked and a small padlock held the small door leading into the yard. It was at this latter place that the thief gained entrance. The broken lock was found about half past nine o'clock this morning when Huber Blocher went to the building.

Mr. Blocher has offered $100 reward for information which will secure the return of the car.

To Aviation Field.—The many friends of William B. Eckenrode, son of Mr. and Mrs. Joseph Eck-enrode, Washington street, are glad to learn that he has secured a lucrative position in the aviation field at Middletown.

Mr. Eckenrode worked for the Reaser Furniture company for thirteen years, going in when a boy. At the time he started to work the plant employed only fourteen men. He spent all that time in the varnish department.

Camp Colt Gets a French Tank.

—The long expected tank is here.

Camp Colt's officers and men are as happy as a playground full of children with a new toy. This morning one of the small French tanks was received by freight from an automobile factory "somewhere in America." It was soon unloaded and was driven through town while scores of people watched it with greatest interest.

The tank made a loud noise as it crept along caterpillar fashion. It was driven out to the camp where it was the center of attraction all day.

The machine received here this morning is of the Renault type. It is one of four tanks sent from France to America to be used as models in the construction of similar fighting cars here. Neither the one which is at Camp Colt nor any of the others is heavily armored and none of them saw service at the front.

Personal.—Mrs. J. Edward

Oyler, Mrs. Ehrhart, Miss Bertha

Oyler and Miss Indus Oyler are spending several days in York.

Henry Garvin, who is stationed at Camp Meade, has been promoted

LITTLE GARDENS

He has not lived in vain whose patch of ground

In summer time one touch of beauty shows,

Who, loving blossoms, labors for a rose

And builds a bed and winds a path around.

Not in success alone man's worth is found,

Nor in the tasks by which his fortune grows,

But in those things wherein his spirit glows,

The simpler joys by which his life is crowned.

Who loves a garden keeps it for itself,

And sets himself the tasks which it requires,

He seeks no great reward of fame or pelf,

'Tis love of beauty which his soul inspires.

The little gardens humble people make

Proclaim the souls who toil for beauty's sake.

Little Jack Rabbit

By David Cress

Well, now let me ponder a minute. Where did we leave the little rabbits? Luckymobiling on the road to somewhere, as I remember correctly. And as they drove along, after a while and a sunny mile, they came to a place where

All along the old stone wall

The meadow roses grew,

And Black Eyed Susans, tall and slim,

Would sometimes wink at you.

"I'm going to pick some roses for mother," cried the loving little bunny, and out he hopped. But,

Oh dear me! No sooner had he gathered a pretty nosegay and was about to hop back into the Luckymobile, than a voice suddenly shouted:

"How dare you steal my roses

Along the old stone wall?

Indeed, you have a lot of nerve

For one so young and small?"

"Who are you?" asked Uncle

Lucky, brave as could be.

"I'll soon show you," replied the voice, and a large, wild pig lifted his head above the piled up stones. Then, opening his mouth, he gave a dreadful grunt, at the same time winking his beady, black eyes and wiggling his long, bristly ears.

"Oh, dear! I'll give them back to you," cried the little frightened bunny.

"No, you won't," shouted brave,

Uncle Lucky. "These wild roses don't belong to this wild pig any more than they belong to the Wild

Man of Borneo!" And giving the automobile horn a sudden honk, he quickly drove away. Goodness me! The sound of that horn so frightened the wild pig that he fell over backward, and before he had picked himself up and dusted his back, for he was a very particular kind of a pig, the little rabbits were out of sight.

"Never let a pig bluff you," chuckled Uncle Lucky. "Had he been a lion, maybe I might have hesitated, but a pig—" and pulling his precious wedding stovepipe hat down on one side of his head,

About Our Store

The other day we watched the people on the street while an airplane passed overhead. Not more than a dozen looked up.

New ideas come and go. What's new today is commonplace tomorrow.

You can imagine, then, what that means to a merchant. Styles change. New colors, new qualities, new ideas come and go. It is impossible to predict what the demands of the trade may be a few months hence.

To keep up with this procession, we are in touch with every source of information we know about. It's our business to do that. We want the information, not for ourselves alone, but for our customers.

We must keep pace.

DEALERS TO AID
IN ADVERTISING

Will Be Given Opportunity To Voice Sentiments In National Program.

Detroit, Mich., June 9.—Renewal of a unique series of advertising conferences, in which the automobile dealer is given a voice in the national advertising program of the factory, was announced here today by John E. Grimm, Jr., advertising manager of the Chevrolet Motor Company.

This company is now in the midst of the largest and most comprehensive advertising campaign ever undertaken in the history of the automotive industry.

The first of the new series of dealer conferences, held under the general supervision of Mr. Grimm, took place here a week ago when dealers selected from the domestic Chevrolet organization met with factory officials to discuss the publicity plans of the company for the next few months.

"The object of these advertising conferences," Mr. Grimm explained, "is to keep the home office constantly in touch with problems faced daily by the dealers so that Chevrolet advertising may be guided by actual field conditions and thus prove most effective."

"The assistance given by dealers in these monthly conferences," he continued, "is of invaluable benefit in adding to the efficiency of our advertising. This is particularly true of the newspaper advertising, which, of course, forms the greatest retail advertising force for each individual dealer."

"While every type of advertising from newspaper, magazine, outdoor and electric spectacular signs to trade papers is discussed, major interest attaches to the newspaper schedule, because this makes up by far the largest part of the year's budget. There are now more than 5,500 leading newspapers carrying the Chevrolet message to practically every city, town and hamlet in the United States."

"Particular care is taken in selecting the dealers invited to attend these conferences. Some are chosen because they have very large car contracts. Others because their contracts are very small. Every dealer also comes from a different section of the country. In this manner we get an ideal cross-section of the advertising needs of all classes of dealers in all parts of the United States."

"Dealer advertising conferences will be held every month this summer, with a different group of dealers from different parts of the country present each time."

"Each conference is of two days' duration. The first day is given over entirely to the discussion of advertising in all its phases. The second day the dealers are taken to the General Motors proving ground where they are shown the rigid test Chevrolet cars undergo before they are put on the market."

An added feature of the recent conference was a radio party held for the dealers of W. S. Knudsen, president and general manager of the Chevrolet Motor Company. The occasion was "Chevrolet Hour" on the General Motors Family Party program. This was held in celebration of the fact that there have been placed on the road more than a half million Bigger and Better Chevrolets since January 1, a feat never before duplicated by a new model in a similarly short space of time.

DURANT AGAIN
BREAKS RECORD

For Third Consecutive Month
Shatters Production Record of Five Years.

"Durant plants have for the third consecutive month broken all production records for the past five years," announced T. S. Johnston, assistant to W. C. Durant, today.

This great production has been necessitated by the unprecedented demand for Durant cars, not only in this country but all over the world, the export shipments for May being 300% greater than May of last year.

This is no chance occurrence, but is the result of consistent gains begun last September when the main plant at Elizabeth, New Jersey, broke all records for the month. October passed September, and September, October and November surpassed any three corresponding months.

During December, January and February the Durant plants were busy preparing and starting on production of the new Durant line, but in an amazingly short time got under way, and March saw a new production record established at the Elizabeth plant, 9661 cars being produced and sold at that one plant, a gain of 20% over any previous record, or 61 cars per day more. Again—in April this plant broke all records, surpassing March by 13.8%, 11,012 cars being built.

Now May, with 12,534 cars exceeded April by 13.5%, and March, April and May have exceeded the best three consecutive months' total for all time by 57.5%.

The great demand for Durant cars has resulted in a gain of 19% in registrations in all states including the District of Columbia for the first three months of the year, despite the time lost because of new models, and when registration figures are available for April and May this gain will undoubtedly be much greater. In California, one of the most critical buying markets, the Durant line was first or tied for first place in 72 cities and towns in the month of April, and second or tied for second place in 47 cities and towns.

In New York, Chicago, Los Angeles and Detroit, the key cities of the industry, Durant showed a gain of 44.9% in registrations for the first quarter of 1928 over the corresponding period of 1927.

These unprecedented records are being made in the face of the keenest competition, both in manufacturing and selling, that the industry has ever known. Yet each month shows an increasing enthusiasm from dealers and public alike. Orders—wholesale and retail—continue to run so far in excess of current production that factory extensions are being rushed to completion.

Gettysburg Merchants!
Fire Works July 4th

Due to the numerous complaints of the kind of fire works used in Gettysburg the past two years, have decided to limit the sale and use of fire works this year to the small fire crackers and such fire works as are comparatively harmless. No fire crackers larger than the 10 cent packs will be allowed and the small dynamite crackers with fuse in the middle as used last year will not be tolerated.

Merchants will be governed accordingly.

"Surely no better endorsement for International Trucks can be offered by our company than to say that since we now find ourselves confronted with the need of two more trucks we have decided that these trucks shall also be International SL Models. This will increase our present fleet to fifteen SL Internationals."

We suggest that firms with transportation problems give us an opportunity to discuss this highly important phase of their business with them. We will gladly furnish complete information on any and all models up to 5-ton capacity.
